

Within the framework of the Safety and Occupational Health Day (SSO) the Ecuadorian Transit Authority Organized an open house session in which authorities, employees, invited guests and collaborators as well as different invited public and private institutions interchanged criteria regarding a culture of prevention among the population as well as the social, mental and physical welfare of the workers.

In this event la Junta de Beneficencia de Guayaquil included a stand to communicate the Institution's social work for the community, services offered by the different departments and technical help which has been extended on a national level thanks to agreements with international organizations.